Senator Bill Stouffer Adds Intern to In-office Staff

JEFFERSON CITY – Senator Bill Stouffer, R-Napton, today announced an expansion to his in-office staff with the addition of Nathan White, who will serve as an intern.

White is from Norborne, Mo. and is a senior agricultural economics major at the University of Missouri-Columbia. In his new position, he will be writing press releases, handling constituent concerns, assisting with drafting legislation and fulfilling other various duties that will help Stouffer’s office run more effectively for the citizens of the 21st Senatorial District.

“Nathan is a strong supplement to my already hard-working team,” Stouffer said. “Because he is from my district and has worked with my staff and me in the past, I know he will mesh well with us and offer valuable judgment regarding issues that affect my constituents.”

White is looking forward to working with Stouffer and combining his area of interest with hands-on experience in the political sphere.

“I am really interested in legislation that involves the family-farming industry and other sectors of ag-business, so I plan on sitting in on Ag committee meetings,” White said. “It should be a very beneficial experience all around, and I’m honored to be chosen for this position.”
