Sen. Crowell Meets With MS Society Representatives

JEFFERSON CITY— Sen. Jason Crowell, R-Cape Girardeau, on February 28, 2007, welcomed to the Capitol members of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society. The National Multiple Sclerosis Society provides comprehensive services to more than 7,000 Missourians and 400,000 people nationwide.

Sen. Crowell met with senior level staff, board members, and volunteers consisting of Robin White of Jackson and Sharon Hileman and Walter Wildman of Cape Girardeau to discuss ways to increase MS awareness and lobby for the passage of key legislation.

“It was great to visit with Robin, Sharon, and Walt to see how they are involved in advocating for and spreading the word about MS awareness,” Sen. Crowell said. “The MS Society is crucial in teaching those living with MS how to adapt and maximize the quality of their lives. We have over 7,000 people in Missouri with MS, but when you factor in family members that are affected the number is closer to 20,000 Missourians affected.”

National MS Awareness Week is March 5-11. For more information or to volunteer, contact sharon.hileman@gatewaymssociety.org or call (314)781-9020.
