Sen. Jason Crowell reports that Governor Matt Blunt will be traveling around the state to host a series of press conferences highlighting the new Access Missouri scholarship program that is an important component of Senate Bill 389. The governor is scheduled to stop in Cape Girardeau at 12:45 p.m. at the University Center on the Southeast Missouri State University campus.

“I would like to thank Governor Blunt for taking the time to make the case for the current version of Senate Bill 389. This package can accomplish a great deal of reforms and opportunities for the system of higher education, and I fully support this legislation. I welcome the governor to Cape Girardeau and look forward to the opportunity to vote for this legislation in the Missouri Senate.”
