State Senator Robin Wright-Jones Recognizes Veteran, Minority-Owned Small Business

JEFFERSON CITY – State Sen. Robin Wright-Jones (D-St. Louis) recently recognized Project Management Solutions Group of St. Louis as one of the state’s most successful and highly esteemed enterprises.

The organization has been distinguished as a service-oriented, veteran-owned, minority-owned small business that excels at program and project management in the fields of telecommunications, information technology, health care, supply-chain management, business operations, real estate development, and construction, according to a Senate Resolution issued by Sen. Wright Jones.

Specifically, the proclamation notes that Prime Management Solutions Group recently received a subcontract from the United States Army Human Resources Command for $480,000 and a $5.7 million prime contract from the United States Army Corps of Engineers for construction services at the Veteran’s Administration Medical Center at Marion, Illinois.

As a result, Project Management Solutions Group has been recognized at the 2010 Client Showcase sponsored by the Missouri Small Business & Technology Development Centers and the Missouri Procurement Technical Assistance Centers.

“Project Management Solutions is a tremendous example of the kind of business we are proud to have located in the City of St. Louis,” said Sen. Wright-Jones. “They’ve worked hard and found success, but they’ve kept to their roots in our community. I wish them nothing but success and hope they continue to thrive, progress, and grow as a business enterprise in the St. Louis area.”
