Ethics Reform

Holding Politicians Accountable

Elected officials are chosen by you, to represent your interest in the General Assembly, not their own. But from time to time, a few politicians use their position to be self-serving and forget to make decisions based on what is best for you. As the debate on ethics reform continues, in my opinion, two key items should be included to have true ethics reform.

on ethics reforms*

In this week's video, I explain these two proposals that will ensure that elected officials in Jefferson City serve your best interest. I appreciate you watching and let me know what you think.

You can view the video by clicking on the video box in this report or you can also visit www.senate.mo.gov/crowell and click on the ethics reform information link. This Web site will also provide you with additional up-to-date information and progress of all my proposed reforms to make sure your state government is accountable to you in how it acts.
