Office of Director-Justice Reinvestment Services - Section 9.025

Bk. 1 Page 171

Justice Reinvestment is a data-driven approach to improve public safety and reinvest savings in strategies that can decrease crime and reduce recidivism. Improving Community Treatment Success Program (ICTS), formerly known as the Justice Reinvestment Treatment Pilot (JRITP), is a collaborative program that requires the DOC and the DMH to work together to lower system costs, decrease crime, and create a safer and healthier Missouri. ICTS is a coordinated-care approach that focuses the highest intensity substance addiction services on the highest risk/highest need people on probation or parole supervision. This particular program is the first of its kind in the state. The ICTS program is a “pay for performance” model where treatment provider performance geared toward positive impact on desired outcomes is incentivized in five outcome areas (retention in treatment, housing stability, employment stability, no substance use resulting in a sanction and no technical violations of supervision).

Section 650.058 RSMo. gives DOC the authority to make restitution payments to individuals convicted of a felony in a Missouri court who were later found to be "actually innocent" solely as a result of DNA profiling analysis. Individuals are paid up to $100 per day for each day of wrongful incarceration with total annual payments capped at $36,500. In July 2021 DOC received notice of a newly eligible individual. Substance use and recovery services are a critical step in reducing criminal behavior, relapse, and recidivism by breaking the cycle of addictions and initiating a structured plan for recovery. The Corrections Substance Abuse Earnings Fund collects court ordered fees for offenders in treatment. In FY 2018 the department collected a fee balance from a provider that had not remitted fees in many years. This large collection has created a one-time fund balance that the department does not have sufficient authority to utilize. This request is for authority to expend this fund balance on one-time substance use treatment resources such as program curriculum and staff training/certifications.

Bk. 2 Page 573

The Department of Corrections conducts random and targeted testing of offenders in prison and in the supervised community. This testing allows for early intervention when an offender experiences relapse. Testing is scheduled so that: Monthly, at least 10% of the inmate population is randomly tested for substance use through urinalysis. Monthly, at least 5% of the inmate population suspected of substance abuse based on staff observations, searches, or because they are assigned to work release programs outside institutions is target tested for substance use through urinalysis. Also note that: Random and targeted urinalysis testing is conducted monthly on offenders under community supervision. Drug testing requirements are included in federal grant applications and progress reports. Pre-employment, random and targeted testing of department employees is conducted to ensure the safety and security of offenders, the staff and the public.

Offender Rehabilitative Services –Education Services - Section 9.215

Bk. 2 Page 579

Through a combination of state-operated programs, interagency agreements and outsourced services, the Department of Corrections provides qualified educators to conduct institution-based education and vocational programs for offenders. Incarcerated offenders without a verified high school diploma or High School Equivalency Certificate are required to enroll in academic education. The department continuously assesses the educational needs of offenders from their intake through their release to the community. Libraries at every correctional institution serve the informational and recreational needs of offenders, including constitutionally mandated "access to courts" through legal resources and reference materials. Offenders who have obtained a high school diploma or equivalent may apply for admission to post-secondary, work-related skills training.

The spending authority in the appropriation that supports these expenses has historically been adjusted based on the projected revenues into the fund. Several years of restriction plans, careful management of the fund by the division, better than anticipated revenues have improved the financial health of the fund to the point that the department is requesting a partial restoration of the authority reduced in FY 2020.

Division of Adult Institutions-Transition Center of St. Louis - Section 9.230

Bk. 2 Page 647

This core request provides personal services funding for the Transition Center of St. Louis (TCSTL), previously known as the St. Louis Community Release Center (SLCRC), a 350 bed facility that provides housing and transitional programming to men released from the Division of Adult Institutions or those under community supervision in need of transitional services. Participation in available programming helps residents to balance the requirements of supervision with the responsibilities of living in the community. There are four phases to the program that includes assessment, intensive case management, reentry preparation, and programming tailored specifically to the offenders based on the assessment and treatment plan. Offenders continue to work in the community, are assigned a mentor and begin to transition back to the community after 90 days. The TCSTL has engaged with many community partners who have become part of the treatment team.

Board of Probation and Parole-DOC Command Center - Section 9.240

Bk. 2 Page 671

The Department of Corrections established a Command Center to provide timely responses to recover offenders who have absconded from community supervision while on electronic monitoring, in a residential facility, on Global Positioning System (GPS) tracking, in the Transitional Center of St. Louis, or who have escaped from the Division of Adult Institutions. In addition, this unit also monitors lifetime supervision offenders who are no longer on active supervision in the community. The 24-hours-a-day, 7-days-a-week operation enters warrants and initiates investigations as soon as notification is received that offenders have escaped or violated conditions of their community supervision.

Board of Probation and Parole-Community Corrections- Section 9.245

Bk. 2 Page 697

This section contains funding for three community corrections programs; electronic monitoring, residential facilities, and automated low-risk offender supervision. All three programs are funded by the Inmate Revolving Fund, which is sustained primarily through Intervention Fees paid by offenders under supervision. Automated low-risk offender supervision is an FY 2022 new decision item request. Currently, Probation and Parole Officers' caseloads are a mix of high-risk, moderate-risk, and low-risk offender cases. The department is requesting appropriation authority to contract with a vendor for an automated supervision system for low-risk offenders on community supervision. The exact nature of the system will be determined through the state procurement process including a competitive bid.

Book 2 Page 687

The Electronic Monitoring Program (EMP) contracts for equipment and support services that enhance the supervising probation and parole officer's ability relative to monitoring, control and enforcement of offender movement, curfew restrictions, and alcohol consumption. This program aids reduction of recidivism by enabling more timely detection and response to violations for offenders who have been unresponsive or unsuccessful under traditional caseload supervision. In FY21, the division supervised an average of 1,229 offenders per day with electronic monitoring equipment.

Bk. 2 Page 703

As an alternative to constructing additional prisons to meet increases in prisoner population, the Department of Corrections (DOC) operates six Community Supervision Centers (CSCs) to reduce the prisoner growth rate by insuring that only chronic, violent and repeat offenders are incarcerated in our existing secure facilities. The CSCs provide a community-based, short-term intervention option to assess, stabilize and monitor offenders at risk for revocation in areas of the state that contribute significant numbers of annual prison admissions and revocations. Each center includes an administrative area to accommodate the existing Probation and Parole district offices located in that area, as well as sufficient program/classroom areas and dormitory housing space for 30-60 offenders in need of structured residential supervision.
