FISCAL ANALYSIS

ASSUMPTION

Officials of the Office of Secretary of State assume no fiscal impact.

Kansas City officials assume some savings would be realized. Officials stated the amount of savings would be dependent upon the number of cooperative agreements to which the City would be a party. Officials assume some administrative savings from not having to have someone go and record the transactions. Officials believe savings would be minimal.

City of Independence officials assume this proposal would have a positive impact to the City. Officials estimate the savings to range from $27 to $527 annually, depending upon the number of contracts.

City of Fulton officials stated that this proposal will save money annually, in recording fees, staff time, copying, and mailing costs.

City of Rolla officials assume this proposal would save the City the costs associated with filing contracts, labor costs associated in time. Officials estimate the annual savings at as much as $4,000.

DESCRIPTION continued

Jefferson County officials stated this proposal would save the county staff time, and supplies involved in copying, and filing fees. Officials did not estimate annual costs savings.

The Greene County Recorder of Deeds stated this proposal would have no fiscal impact on any funds, or their office. Officials stated “the procedure for filing contracts with the Recorder of Deeds has not been adhered to in the past”.

Callaway County Recorder of Deeds assume no fiscal impact.

Oversight for the purposes of this fiscal note assumes that political subdivisions would have some administrative savings and savings in time and filing fees with the proper authorities. The Recorder of Deeds would realize some administrative savings in time and would realize a minimal loss in revenue from contracts not being filed. According to one Recorder of Deeds the practice of contracts being filed was never adhered to, therefore, Oversight will show some savings and a loss of revenue to certain Recorder of Deeds, and a Savings to those political subdivisions that adhered to the law. Both loss of revenue and savings in filing fees being equal, the net fiscal impact to local government would be $0.
